RELAX, YOU DESERVE IT!

WELCOME IN GUBEC HOMELAND

Gubec homeland (Donja Stubica and Gornja Stubica area) is located in the southern part of Krapina-Zagorje County and in the central area of the northern slopes of Medvednica Mountain.

It is a place of great traditional value. The richness of cultural elements and historical monuments make it a place of recognizable identity. Coupled with its mild climate and beautiful countryside, Gubec homeland is an irresistible vacation site, but also an increasingly attractive place for peaceful family life.

Peasants' Revolt from 1573 and Matija Gubec

Ambroz Matija Gubec is a famous historic figure holding a particular spot in history as a Croatian peasant and the leader of the Peasants' Revolt in Croatia and Slovenia. Prior to the well-known Peasants' Revolt, Gubec worked as a serf at the estate of the infamous Franjo Tahi. The Peasants' Revolt took place in 1573 when the peasants decided to stop paying their dues to the lords where, consequently, one of the lords sent the armed mercenaries whom the peasants readily met for a battle. However, the Croatian Parliament reacted by declaring the peasants traitors, to which they responded with the general uprising against their feudal lords.

The peasants elected Matija Gubec as the leader of the revolt who, along with his closest associates and friends - Ilija Gregorić, Andrija Pasanec, Nikola Pozebec, Vinko Lepoić, and others, rose the peasants to a rebellion the night of 18th to 19th of January 1573.

In a very short time period, Gubec proved himself as a true leader - never giving up and inspiring many men to join him with his attitudes and behaviour. On February 9th 1573, he led the peasants into the crucial battle against the nobility near Stubičke Toplice. Unfortunately, the peasants were defeated and Gubec, as their leader, was taken to Zagreb, where he was punished for urging the peasants into the rebellion. To set an example for others, he was publicly tortured and executed on February 15th at St. Mark's Square. According to the legend, he was forced to wear a red-hot iron crown and subsequently quartered.

Upon the sad ending of the Peasants' Revolt, Gubec has entered into legends as a great leader.

ATTRACTIONS

Monument to The Peasants' Revolt from 1573 and Matija Gubec

On a hillside next to the Oršić Castle in Gornja Stubica, overlooking the Stubica valley, stands a 6.5 m high statue of Matija Gubec, with two symmetrical wings raising behind it - each 20 m long and 7.5 m high and decorated with bronze reliefs portraying over three hundred characters. On one side there are scenes from the Battle of Stubica - people, horses and the clash of the aristocratic army and rebelled peasants, while on the other side there is a panorama of life at that time. At the bottom of the right wing there is a life-size character of Petrica Kerempuh, holding a tambura in his hands. The author of the monument is Antun Augustinčić and it was completed for the 4th centenary of the Peasants' Revolt, on the opening day of the Peasants' Revolt Museum in 1973.

Memorial Park to Rudolf Perešin

Rudolf Perešin is a Homeland War hero. He made his mark when, at the beginning of the war, on October 25th 1991, he made a historic flight with a MIG-21 plane of the former Yugoslav Army to land in Kalgenfurt, Austria. On that occasion, he said the famous phrase: "I am Croat and cannot shoot at my people"! His plane was shot down on May 2nd 1995 during the military operation Flash. On June 24th 2004, the "Rudolf Perešin" memorial park was inaugurated in Gornja Stubica, with a statue of the pilot and a preserved MIG-21. Every year, the event "Meetings for Rudolf" takes place in honour of Rudolf Perešin. The event has long outgrown the local character, becoming a major cultural and social event of the north-west part of Croatia, and also the largest and most visited flying show in all of Croatia.

Gubec Linden Tree

Next to the Church of St. George in Gornja Stubica stands the 400-year-old Gubec Linden Tree, the only living witness of the Peasants' Revolt in 1573. Today, the linden tree is 9 m high, with a trunk diameter of 4.70 m. Due to its age and dimensions it presents a natural rarity. In 1957, the linden tree was declared a natural monument and placed under state protection as a cultural monument.
